NATIONAL TRUST CO.

PURCHASE A MAIN STREET CORNER

Negotiations Completed by which the National Trust Co. acquire the corner opposite the Windsor Hotel.

The National Trust Co. have secured from McDougall & Secord the lot at the corner of Jasper Avenue and First Street on which now stands the frame building occupied by the Singer Sewing Machine Co. negotiations for the purchase have been under way for some time and Mr. Stewart, local manager for the National Trust Co. announced this morning that the bargain had been closed.

The lot has a frontage of 56 feet on Jasper Avenue and of 120 feet on First Street. The price paid was $20,000. or $357 per foot.

While no announcement has been made of the intention of the new owners to rebuild on the newly acquired property it is a foregone conclusion that the corner will eventually be occupied by a block in keeping with the location and value of the site. The opposite corners are now occupied by the Windsor Hotel the general store of McDougall & Secord and the block in course of completion for the bank of Nova Scotia.

"Fourteen Days."

The following story which appeared in the first number of the Fort Saskatchewan "Report" was written by Mr. Basil C. d'Easum of that town

Tom Nettle was a trooper in the Canadian Mounted Rifles in South Africa.

Now, throughout the British army the C.M.R. were known as good foragers, and among the Canadians Tom was known as being particularly skilled in the gentle part of "Rasling." Other men might be hungry, but not so Nettle if there was anything eatable to be borrowed from a Boer. His objects on volunteering for service in South Africa, were to see the country and have a good time—fighting the Boers came under the head of, having a good time. Of army discipline he knew nothing and cared still less—darned foolishness he called it, which it is to a certain extent.

The Canadian Mounted Rifles were made up of Northwest Mounted Police and plainmen all being men accustomed to the free and easy ways of North West Canada. The officers did not hold the lines of discipline so tightly as was done by the officers of the regular corps.

So Nettle continued to live on the enemy's country and to have a good time.

Occasionally, on the march to Pretoria he would wander away from the column and return a day or two later with his horse basting with chickens and geese, and his wallet stuffed full of little articles which he had picked up at some Dutch farmhouse. Very wrong of course and likely to get a man into trouble. But, as the C.M.R. were then on the march there were no opportunities for holding "Orderly Room" courts, and, consequently, Nettle did not get the attention he would have received for missing his turn at night guard or other special duties.

His troops' sergeant would probably curse him loudly for the extra trouble he gave them, but he generally saw the policy of sharing some of his spoils with them.

The regiment soon after reaching Middleburg, in the Eastern Transvaal, was encamped for a few weeks and employed in patrolling the district. Camp guard and other duties had to be performed, and military discipline was a little more strictly enforced than on the march.

All this was irksome to Nettle, and no one was surprised to hear that he was missing one evening when he should have taken his turn at stable placket in the horse lines. This day he had been on a patrol with some men of his troop, and was last seen when riding in the direction of a farmhouse which was dangerously close to the Boer lines. But danger never troubled Nettle if there was any prospect of getting loot. For was there not an occasion when he went through the Boer lines and had his horse shot but managed to replace it with one from the enemy, together with several tins of sardines, a Dutch Bible two bottles of "Dop" (native brandy), and a miscellaneous collection of poultry.

There were many imitators of his foraging raids in the ranks of the Canadian Mounted Rifles, and the matter was becoming too notorious. Therefore this night when Trooper Nettle was absent from guard mounting, the sergeant instead of detailing some other man for the vacant post reported the fact to the Regimental Sergeant Major and the R.S.M. to the adjutant, who gave orders that Nettle should be put under arrest next day and brought to the "Orderly Room."

But next day Tom did not appear nor the following day.

On the afternoon of the fifth day a little procession was seen coming towards the camp. First came a big "back" wagon, (a Boer transport wagon, drawn by fourteen oxen, two Kaffirs, five oxen, and a horse, and vigorously cracking their long whips. Then came a Cape cart, laden with household goods, and drawn by two mules which were driven by a grunting Kaffir. And, last of all, came the

MONARCH RANGE...

There is no question as to what this Range can do or its durability, as thousands and thousands of them are in use on this continent, and so far as we have been able to learn no fault has yet been found with them.

The main body of this Range is built up of sheet steel, and all the other parts that require to be cast are malleable iron. The top is ground to a bright steel finish, and is so heavy that, no matter how long or how hot you heat it, you cannot make it warp or get out of shape.

You will notice that the oven has a drop door, and the above cut illustrates the strength of this door, as any man can stand on it when it is open without straining it in the least. This will give some idea of the strength of the Stove, as all its parts are as strong as this cut of the oven door open with the salesman standing on it would convey to you.

It is a wonderful baker, a very quick heater, and its water front is so constructed that it will heat water nearly twice as quick and on a much less quantity of fuel than any other Range now on the market.

The purchaser of a MONARCH RANGE insures a satisfaction that cannot be measured in dollars and cents, for at the end of ten years' use it will operate as easily and be just as good as when first started.

Remember the MONARCH when you want to purchase a Range.

Mining towns in B. C., say	2,000
Small places in Territories, say	1,000
Total	51,542	Total	24,333

There are several peculiarities in this which will repay perusal.

The population of Edmonton, given at 5,400, was 7,500 according to the police census taken a year since, and is now probably considerably in excess of that number. The population of Strathcona, given as 1,550, was at the last census 2,600. The figures for the other northern towns not being to hand, corrections of several very obvious under-estimates cannot be given definitely.

The cities and towns of Golden, Field, Cranbrook, Michael, Fernie, Morrissey, Nelson, and Revelstoke are situated in British Columbia, and as there has been no suggestion made to alienate any portion of that province and join it to the proposed province of Alberta, the populations of these towns and cities bears no weight in fixing the population centre of Alberta.

But the boldest departure from all rule and custom is the exclusion from this list of the entire rural population of the proposed province. That there was a method in this madness appears very probable from the fact that in the ranching country of Southern Alberta the bulk of population is found in the towns and cities, while in the settled agricultural district from Red Deer north the farming population is in enormous excess of the urban populace. According to the latest and most reliable figures the total population of the Strathcona electoral district is about 60,000, and that of the Edmonton electoral district approximately the same. Subtracting from these combined totals the urban population included in the Herald's calculations the farming population north of Red Deer is found to be in the neighborhood of 100,000.

With these facts considered, the Herald's conclusions are altered in this way:

Calgary total, given	51,542
Less population of B. C. towns	15,674
Correct total for Calgary district	35,868
Edmonton's total, given	24,333
Under-estimate re Edmonton	2,100
Under-estimate re Strathcona	1,100
Rural population	100,000
	127,533
Less population of Field, B. C.	200
Correct total for Edmonton district	127,333

To this might also be added the population of the Peace and McKenzie River districts, directly tributary to Edmonton and vitally interested in the establishment of the capital in this city. This population is estimated at from 20,000 to 25,000.

Story of a Suicide.

Calgary Herald.—A drama in real life containing all the tragic interest of the stage romance, was concluded in Calgary last week when William Bryan committed suicide. In his pitiful case however the law of compensation imposed its capital penalty swift and sure. A year ago William Bryan, a young man of thirty arrived at Cardston from Galesburg, Ill. He was accompanied by a pretty young wife. They took charge of a farm near Spring Coulee, the property of A. F. Hickley of Galesburg. He appeared prosperous and contented nearly every Saturday Bryan was in Cardston with his wife. Their devotion was much discussed. When the young farmer came alone. Then he began to drink. He often boasted that he could take a drink and let it alone. The more he talked of his strength in this direction the harder he drank.

The farm near Spring Coulee was neglected and so was the young wife. Bryan was popular and had plenty of money to spend. He was frequently spoken of as a "good fellow" and a "prince of spenders." Last month young Bryan sold a valuable team of horses the property of his employer, for much less than they were thought to be worth. Hickley was communicated with. An investigation followed. Bryan suddenly left the country, sending advice to friends that he had gone to Minneapolis but left his wife and baby behind. His accounts were irregular and found unsatisfactory. The authorities traced him north instead of south. At High River the police found he had gone to Calgary. Before further trace of the young man could be found a stranger was removed from a hotel to the General Hospital dying of strychnine poison taken with suicidal intent. Before expiring he told his name. It was William Bryan, the young farmer from Spring Coulee, the "good fellow" and "prince" spender who "could take a drink and let it alone."

THE BONSPIEL.

Yesterday's games at the bonspiel narrowly down the list of competitors in all the different events to the ones who are to participate in the semi-finals. The Grand Challenge finals will be played this afternoon at 2 o'clock and will be watched with extra interest as it has been so hard by contest at all along and the Emory of Edmonton and McLellan of Fort Saskatchewan remain. In the game between Moore and McLellan yesterday an extra end was necessary to make the score 9 to 10 in favor of McLellan, which gives the Fort team a trial for the trophy in the finals.

In the McDougall trophy games the list of players has been lessened until the rinks of Matz, Spafford and Galbraith alone remain in the competition and as Matz and Spafford played this morning there now remains but one game for this trophy.

The four rinks of Rae, Shepperd, Lauder and Spafford are all that have survived the games in the Smart trophies and in the Gallagher but one game will be played between Stevenson and Spafford, Emory, Stevenson and Rae still have hopes of the Constitution Trophy.

The Red Deer rink holds the record of games won, at present having won six games without losing one.

The games of today are as follows: 9 a.m. Draw—Matz vs. Spafford; McDougall; Rae vs. Shepperd, Smart; 11 a.m. Draw—Stevenson vs. Emory Constitution.

The games will continue until tomorrow when the bonspiel will close with the awarding of the prizes.

There will be no curling this evening as the players propose to attend the Old Timers Hall.

missing trooper, Nettle riding a fine Boer pony.

Nettle turned his outfit over to the transport officers and came to the lines of the C.M.R. Here he was met with the news that he was to consider himself under arrest for being absent without leave. He was also told that he would have to go before Colonel on the morrow. He did not let this worry him, for he felt sure that his course of the expedition would speak in his favour.

He had come upon a Boer farm house which had been left in charge of some Kaffir servants. The house was well supplied with many comforts, and Nettle made himself very much at home for five days, making the Kaffirs obey his orders. At last, fearing that his regiment might have moved from Middleburg he told the Kaffirs to hitch the oxen to the wagon, loaded the Cape cart with a few things which he thought might be useful, took a Boer pony and started for camp. There was a big band of cattle belonging to the farm-house, and Nettle regretted that he was not able to drive it towards the camp.

However, he had brought a good supply of cartridges, and his chums had a great feast that night, many of them expressing the opinion that the capture of the oxen and wagon would whitewash Nettle from any trouble in the orderly room.

He had no stripes, so he could not be reduced to the ranks. The only punishment then, could be "C. B." which in military matters means "confined to barracks" and other small penalties which are included in the sentence. As he was on active service and not living in barracks, "C. B." was interpreted to mean the doing of extra "fatigues," such as cleaning the camp and horse lines and, in spare moments, the digging of refuse pits.

This last task was hard work under the hot African sun; Nettle felt confident that that fate would not be his.

In fact, next day when he was summoned to the Colonel's tent he went with Jaunty air thinking that he would surely be commended for his meritorious action in capturing the Boer wagon and oxen.

Digging refuse pits seemed an impossibility; indeed, he pictured himself receiving a handshake from the Colonel.

That officer was sitting very straight in his chair at the table of justice when the Regimental Sergeant-Major marched to the door of the tent and saluted. Trooper Nettle standing at attention outside.

"Give me your hat," said the Regimental to Nettle, "three steps forward, quick march."

"What is the charge, Sergeant-Major?" said the Colonel.

"Absent for five days without leave sir."

"What have you to say, Trooper Nettle?" enquired the Colonel.

Then Nettle told his little tale, taking care to enlarge upon the capture of the waggon and oxen, also trying to let the Colonel see that his feelings were somewhat hurt at being placed under arrest or charged with any offence at all.

The Colonel listened patiently to the end, then he said, "Fourteen days, C. B."

Poor Nettle looked at him for a moment with wide open eyes. "But sir," he stammered, "I brought in fourteen oxen!"

"Exactly," said the Colonel with a grim smile, "one day for each ox."

"Right about then, quick march!" shouted the Regimental Sergeant-Major, and the amazed Trooper Nettle marched away more in sorrow than in anger.

Two days later he spoke to him as he was digging a refuse pit in terrible rocky ground; it was very hot.

"Hard luck old man!" said I.

"Hard luck?" said he. "Oh, I guess I can manage to do fourteen days, but just think what I should have had to do if I had been in that bunch of cat-lo!"

WHAT COSTS MOST

WHOLELOT of people fancy the cigar business is a snap!

They figure out that all you need is some cases of tobacco, a few cigar makers, and the name of some stage favorite or prominent man.

The quality of the filler does not interest them at all—the binder is beneath their notice—but the wrapper and the name is all important.

They can sell this kind of cigar at $55.00 a thousand, give a gold watch into the bargain, and then make a good size profit.

The principal cost of Pharaohs is in tobacco—I buy the best filler in the world—a Cuban leaf—one I select myself from the best of the Manicure district, in the Province of Santa Clara—a Connecticut broad leaf as binder, the most expensive in the world—and I import a clear leaf Sumatra from Holland as wrapper.

I secure by this means a superb cigar, a fragrant, even smoker—very palatable—very superior to the ordinary run of cigars.

THIS IS TRULY THE IRON AGE.

Some Pertinent Facts in Regard to Iron and Iron Mining.—The Returns to Shareholders from Iron Properties Greater than from any Other Class of Investment, The Iron Mines of The Edmonton Coal and Iron Mining Company Promise Much to the Owners and to the Prosperity of Edmonton and Northern Alberta.

We often hear the expression "the iron age," but few of us realize what this term actually means when applied to the present era, as it often is. In order to better grasp its meaning, and still further to appreciate to the fullest extent all that it entails, let us look back to the "Iron Age" of past history. In those early times when man was yet in his infancy so far as education and enlightenment goes, when life meant a continued struggle for the supremacy of the race, in short, when his best efforts were limited to an extent which it would be impossible for us in our day to imagine, his sole ambition stopped short at the manufacture of a few crude household utensils and weapons of war and the chase. How different it is with us today! Not only are we equipped with cooking utensils and arms of the finest description but, what is still more to the point, we have subjected this all important metal—the greatest of all nature's gifts to her children—to our almost every need. Not only do we use iron and steel which we may call its offspring, for our houses, but we use it for the actual construction of our largest buildings and it is daily becoming more popular. Again, our bridges, railroads, waterways, subways, docks, shipyards, vessels, in fact all our great modern engineering feats and efforts would fall utterly were it not for the presence and the skillful adoption and use of this wonderful metal, iron.

It would not be too much to state that were we to eliminate the use of iron in its various forms from our present day commodities, not only would the commercial world be suddenly checked but we should gradually and surely drift backward to the starting point; the various branches of trade would have ceased, commercial enterprises would be a thing of the past and civilization would be a mere matter of history. Therefore viewing things from this, the only proper light, the logical conclusion we must arrive at is that this twentieth century is the real iron age, the iron age of the past being merely the embryonic forecast of the world's great future. Such being the case, let us turn to the material side of the case and ask ourselves the question "since iron is practically the fundamental basis of our modern civilization and since it is used to such a vast and ever-increasing extent, how is the supply to keep pace with the demand?" Clearly the field is a large one and even the great iron mines now working are not so numerous as to be able to swamp the market at their present output. There is more demand today than there ever was for a good iron mine, and this is especially applicable to our own country and sections of countries.

Speaking of our own country—this vast Canada—with its limitless resources in the form of minerals, timber etc., here we have a young country, a growing country, full of great prospects and with a vast future. Unhindered by the fog and mists of uncertainty and insecurity she looks up before us in all her might. With outstretched arms she invites us to share her gifts and her future. Her dowry is a simple one, nor does she withhold it from those who have the wisdom to know her charms. Her veins are of fine gold. Her ornaments are many and precious. Her will is of iron, and as surely her will controls her actions, so surely must her iron control her future. With this iron she will build her great railways, the Grand Trunk and the Canadian Northern, albeit in themselves a vast undertaking being but an earnest of future and still greater enterprise. She must have also bridges, ships, machinery and the thousand and one other necessities which go to build up a large nation—which she will surely one day become. Think of this, to build up a nation! Great is a uponous meaning which this implies and ask yourself the question "How are we going to obtain all this iron which is needed?" The answer is simple. Either Canada must import all her iron and by this we include steel, or she must supply her own iron. Would we, knowing that we have fruit in our garden, go elsewhere to obtain it at a greater cost than it is hardly seems feasible. Then let us pluck what we have ready to our hand, in other words let us take hold of the vast iron deposits which we know from the best authorities can see for ourselves we possess. Let us work them, not indiscriminately throwing away money, but with careful consideration and with due regard to location and the probable measure of success which such location promises.

There are those who would say that the average percentage of iron mines which are paying is small compared to the number of mines upon which large sums of money have been spent. Here again, notwithstanding the fact that although the number of failures in iron mines has been far less than that of any other mineral, we find a class of people who rely rather upon their own ideas of what should be than upon the advice of experts who deal with the things that are. Such is the class who would, after losing money by their own careless speculations, decry any form of mining; who, in short impede the march of progress.

It has been said that in order to take an intelligent interest in the affairs of his country every man should study politics. How much more then should he not take an active interest in building up his country by studying its natural resources and assisting to develop them?

It almost devolves upon us as a duty, what we owe to our children and our children's children, the laying of the foundation stones of the future, and this being the age of iron it would seem that in that direction lies the work we have set ourselves to perform.

One naturally asks "where am I to start and how?" We will consider the first part of the query carefully, being guided by past experience and backed up by statistics, for these are the testaments exacted from us by nature before she will yield up her stores in trust for future generations. Taking the iron belts on this continent of America we find that they have been defined limits and their directions as truly as the arteries in the human body. For instance if we find the brachial artery near our armpit and run across it again at our wrist we may safely conclude that it is the same artery, or lead as it would be termed in mining parlance. It is not our design to bewilder the reader or prospective investor with a list of iron mines paying high dividends, nor do we sketch out a geographical chart of all the iron districts and leads on the American continent, but the following example will serve to show the high infallibility of mining operations where carried out on the basis above illustrated. We refer to the world famed iron mines of the Mesabi range in Minnesota, U. S. A. Throughout the entire length of this range, except where there have been many valuable claims taken up and today some of them net an enormous income to those who were far-sighted enough to invest in them. One particular clue is that of a gentleman who now resides in the sobriquet of "Iron King" of Duluth. About twelve years ago he purchased eighty acres of timber land in the iron belt above named for the sum of $3000. After inspecting the timber land he sold the right to take the iron off his eighty acres to the American Steel Corporation, charging them 25 cents per ton for all the ore they took. This has netted him $100,000.00. It is noted from this source alone is $750.00 per acre.

Almost due north some 1000 miles from this Mesabi range lies an immense deposit of iron oxide, the property of the Edmonton Coal and Iron Mining Company. It is located near Edmonton in Northern Alberta not far from the Canadian Northern Railroad and close to the route of the Grand Trunk Pacific, besides which it is within eight miles of the Saskatchewan river which is navigable, and is connected by wagon roads to Edmonton.

Amongst other experts, Mr. Wm. Blakemore, member of Institute of Mining Engineers, England, has reported on this valuable property. He says that in his opinion the company has in this case a "most valuable asset and easily and quickly realizable, as it is more than likely from the character and occurrence of the deposits that the springs come from a stratified ore body below which could be developed by boring."

Alluding to a proposed expenditure of $100,000 he adds "Having had thirty years experience in locating and working various iron deposits, I have no hesitation in saying that this is available property and one which will justify the expenditure recommended."

The mineral deposits he finds by analysis consists of 45.2 per cent. of metallic iron from surface ore and as he further states, not only can it be used to produce an excellent paint oxide, for which a market could readily be found, but it could also be used in combination with other ores or smelting and iron and steel manufacture, similar to that so successfully smelted at the Radnor ranges, Quebec province for many years.

Small wonder then that of late this valuable and immense property has created such a stir among mining circles in various parts, not only of this country but elsewhere.

We Paid $100,000

For Liquezone, Yet We Give You a 50c. Bottle Free.

We paid $100,000 for the American rights to Liquezone; the highest price ever paid for similar rights on any scientific discovery. We did this after testing the product for two years, through physicians and hospitals. In this country and others. We cured all kinds of germ diseases with it—thousands of the most difficult cases obtainable. We proved that in germ troubles it always accomplishes what medicine cannot do. Now we ask you to try it—try it at our expense. Test it as we did; see what it does. Then you will use it always, as we do, and as millions of others do. You will use it, not only to get well, but to keep well. And it will save nearly all of your sickness.

Kills Inside Germs.

Liquezone is not made by compounding drugs, nor is there alcohol in it. Its virtues are derived solely from gas—largely oxygen gas—by a process requiring immense apparatus and 14 days' time. This process has, for more than 20 years, been the constant subject of scientific and chemical research. The result is a liquid that does what oxygen does. It is a nerve food and blood food—the most helpful thing in the world to you. Its effects are exhilarating, vitalizing, purifying. Yet it is a germicide so certain that we publish on every bottle an offer of $1,000 for a disease germ that it cannot kill. The reason is that germs are vegetables; and Liquezone—like an excess of oxygen—is deadly to vegetable matter.

There lies the great value of Liquezone. It is the only way known to kill germs in the body without killing the tissues, too. Any drug that kills germs is a poison, and it cannot be taken internally. Medicine is almost helpless in any germ disease. It is this fact that gives Liquezone its worth to humanity. And that worth is so great that we have spent over one million dollars to supply the first bottle free to each sick one we learned of.

Germ Diseases.

These are the known germ diseases. All that medicine can do for these troubles is to help Nature overcome the germs, and such results are indirect and uncertain. Liquezone attacks the germs, wherever they are. And when the germs which cause a disease are destroyed, the disease must end, and forever. That is inevitable.

Many of the numbers were the old songs of the Jubilee Singers, the plantation melodies whose popularity never fades. These were sung in the matchless harmony of negro voices in a way to leave little to be desired. The concert was entirely free from objectionable features.
